Disclaimer: The intent of the database with its associated liquid repository is to provide a searchable resource that allows a laboratory to isolate an ignitable liquid of interest for inclusion into an in-house reference collection. Commercial products are obtained from manufacturers and distributors, and then repackaged for distribution using the product name assigned. The database is designed for screening purposes only; it does not replace ASTM requirements for an in-house reference collection. The classification system parallels the ASTM classification, with some variation, to assist the user's search and to maintain consistency. A laboratory does not need to adopt the ILRC system to successfully use the database.
